Tyler's practice focuses on complex civil litigation, with a focus on antitrust litigation and trial proceedings. He has represented clients nationwide across many industries, including oil and gas, transportation, financial services, technology, packaged food, advertising, and manufacturing.

In the antitrust field, Tyler's practice includes experience representing corporations as both plaintiffs and defendants in cases involving allegations of monopolization, tying, and price-fixing. Additionally, he has defended companies and their senior executives in investigations and lawsuits by the Antitrust Division of the Department of Justice and the Federal Trade Commission.

Tyler also has a strong track record in conducting confidential investigations for large corporations, including leading global technology firms. He has successfully defended clients and their executives facing federal charges, skillfully navigating plea negotiations and in trial. Prior to joining Yetter Coleman, Tyler practiced with Latham & Watkins in San Francisco.
